RHINELANDER, WISCONSIN

SENATOR LAFOLLETTE URGES VOTERS TO PONDER WELL BEFORE PRIMARY.

Platteville, Wis., Aug. 13.—"I would support my greatest personal enemy for the office of governor at this time, if I thought he was the greatest man in the state, or that he would give the state the best service."

This is what Senator Robert M. La Follette told an audience of 1,000, which packed the city hall auditorium here to night. This statement differs in wording, but not in meaning from what he told a total of 3,000 people he has addressed today at four round-robin meetings in southwestern Wisconsin, at Darlington, Shullsburg, Cuba City and Platteville. A half dozen short sentences taken from today's speeches tell more plainly and more vividly than reporter could of the character of the campaign the senator United States senator of Wisconsin is making in behalf of Irvin L. Lenroot for the Republican nomination for governor.

"I am not speaking to you as Senator La Follette," he said, at Darlington, "but simply as plain Bob La Follette. Under the primary election there can be no dictation. You can read, you can listen, you can ask the council of your neighbor, but you must form your own judgment and do your own voting in secret."

"I am in this fight because I want to see the work in Wisconsin go on," he said at Shullsburg. "You haven't got started in Wisconsin yet. There is more ahead of you to be done than has yet been accomplished."

"You didn't vote for me through five campaigns, from 1894 to 1904, because I was a good fellow," he said at Cuba City. "No one in Wisconsin was asked to support me for governor because I was entitled to the office. I don't think the election of governor of any state should be upon the basis of friendship."

"You voted for me for governor because you thought I would fight the thing through and not give up," he told the people of Platteville.

Senator La Follette has not attacked any one. His speeches have been devoted to outlining the work that the people have yet to do in state and national legislatures before the government is freed from corporation control and before the corporations become the servants instead of the masters of the people and to the affirmative statements that Irvin L. Lenroot is the best of the available men at this time for governor of Wisconsin.—Free Press.

MORSE MUCH ENCOURAGED.

The Candidate Who Stands for the Interests of the People has Nothing to Fear.

As the campaign progresses Mr. Morse grows in the estimation of those he meets as a proper man to represent this district in the next congress. Clean and able he will rise to every occasion. His friends need never be ashamed of him. On the questions of the day his attitude is right, and his political attitude has been right during the past strenuous year. Every republican vote in this district, where he is best known ought to be for him—nearly every one will be. He is certainly handicapped at this stage of the campaign that he has not unlimited funds at his command. But let it not be said that a poor man cannot go to Congress from the old Tenth. This is his permanent home. Here is his growing business—here in Antigo, he has recently built a beautiful home. All his interests are centered in this district. Every friend of his ought to take every occasion to spread his candidacy and see that voters get out primary day and vote right—Antigo Republican.

We, of the Tenth Congressional District are fortunate in having a candidate for congress who stands for progress and better government, and he stood for those things from the time he announced his candidacy, and for many years before. He is E. A. Morse, the Antigo attorney. Let us nominate a man who stands on his own platform, and not a man who picked up a platform after carefully looking over the district. In other words, nominate a man with backbone.—Taylor County Star-News.

VICTIM OF APPENDICITIS.

James Brebels, a young man eighteen years of age, died Thursday morning in St. Mary's hospital where he had been confined for a week with appendicitis. Mr. Brebels had resided here several months and was employed by the Rhinelander Paper Company. He was popular with his fellow employees and had many friends in the city. Two brothers are employed here. The home of the deceased is in Eau Claire and the body was taken to that city for interment Friday morning.

PRINTERS TO KEEP UP FIGHT.

Colorado Springs, Colo., Aug. 13.—On this, the last day of the fifty-second annual convention of the International Typographical Union, the delegates voted to continue the fight for an eight-hour day, with special reference to certain newspapers in Los Angeles and Philadelphia.

ANTIGO DEFEATS RHINELANDER.

Rhinelander ball team lost the game Sunday. Antigo defeating our boys by a score of 11 to 6. Considering the extreme hot weather the game was fast and very interesting. The local's new twirler, pitched good ball and with better support would have won his game, as he easily outpitched his smiling opponent from down the line. He certainly will add a power of strength to the team, as pitching has been the weak spot all the season.

Now why not come out and help the boys; if you can't cheer don't "knock" as has been the case with some, who either don't understand the game or are sore heads. There is no reason for this whatever; our boys play just as good ball as any of the teams that have been here this season, and better than the majority of them. Come to games, cheer for the boys, quit knocking, and in a short time you will be swinging on the base ball game again.

Rhinelander goes to Hurley Sunday, a red hot game is looked for, as Hurley has trounced the locals twice this season but Captain McCormick says, "It will not happen again." Hurley plays a return game here Sunday Sept. 2, at the Fair grounds. Following is the score:

Antigo	ABRHE	Rhinelander	ABRHE
Bulls	6	200	O'Dell	2	110
Wilson	2	22	Schulz	1	110
Wagner	2	22	Zimmer	2	110
Peterson	2	22	Adams	2	110
Green	1	20	Myers	2	110
Nease	1	20	Edwards	2	110
Harkness	2	20	Edwards	2	110
Mayne	1	20	Edwards	2	110
Marshall	1	20	Edwards	2	110
Total	100	2000	Total	100	2000

Summary—Two base hits, Welch, Richards & O'Neill.

Bases on balls by Harkness 1, Prentiss 1.

Struck out by Harkness 5, Prentiss 7. Umpire Bellile.

MORSE FOR CONGRESS.

To the Voters of the Tenth District: GENTLEMEN—I stand squarely on my published platform. I most heartily endorse the idea of President Roosevelt, and cannot praise him too highly. But I have ideas and convictions, and I have fearlessly laid them to you. I cannot afford to buy columns of newspaper space, or to hire men to work for me, because I have no trusts or special interests boosting me, with the expectation of favors in return.

I must depend on the independent thinking voters, the men who have convictions, and the manhood to express them by means of the ballot.

You will not see my picture in every newspaper you pick up because I can't afford to place it there, and I am not very good looking anyway.

If you do not believe that I am qualified for the office, if you do not believe that I will stand squarely and firmly for the rights of all people and all interests, do not vote for me. If you do believe that I have made or will make compromises with any special interest, do not vote for me.

I stand for a square deal, for equal rights to all and special privileges to none.

I believe that principle is more powerful than money, and that it is not necessary to have a "barrel" to go to Congress.

I most respectfully solicit your votes. Very truly,
E. A. MORSE.

VETERANS ADJOURN.

The Grand Army of the Republic completed its fortieth encampment in Minneapolis Saturday and adjourned to meet in Saratoga, N. Y., in 1907. The new Commander-in-Chief to succeed Gen. Tanner is Capt. R. H. Brown of Zanesville, O. His election was unanimous. Other new officers, Senior Vice Commander-in-Chief, Wm. H. Armstrong, Indianapolis, Ind. Junior Vice-Commander-in-Chief, E. H. Peniston, Detroit, Mich. Chaplain-in-Chief, Archbishop John Ireland, St. Paul, Minn. Surgeon General, D. W. H. Johnson, Lincoln, Neb.

LITTLE BOY DROWNED.

Makus Olaf Berglund, the nine year old son of Mr. and Mrs. O. Berglund, residents of Hurley, met his death by drowning in the lake at that village last Thursday. He was in bathing with several others of about his age and was undoubtedly stricken with a cramp. The accident occurred in five feet of water. The body was soon recovered and brought to this city for interment in Forest Home cemetery Friday morning. Rev. Vajry of the Baptist Church conducted the funeral services.

REMOVES CURBING.

The cement curbing for the court on Brown street near the City Hotel, is being removed by order of the council. It was found after installing the curbing that little more than sufficient room for team travel remained on either side of the street and that it was impossible for two teams to pass. Providing that street cars were ever installed here, tracks could not be laid on that portion of the street. It was indeed a wise move of the council in tearing the construction up.

MORSE FOR CONGRESS.

E. A. Morse was not born to the purple. He makes no claim to blue blood or rich ancestors.

He was simply a poor farmer boy, who worked his way through High School, college and the Madison law school. He is well educated and because he worked hard for an education he appreciates it and can use it. He is making his own campaign and spending his own little savings for his legitimate expenses. He is greatly handicapped for money, but is making up for this by his vigorous hustling campaign.

He is scrupulously honest, thoroughly competent and worthy the support of all thinking republicans.

Antigo has never had a Republican Congressman and although Antigo is in the center of the district, Morse's friends are not using this as an argument to get votes.

They are simply saying "Vote for Morse because Morse is the man for the office. He is not narrow minded enough to represent any one city. He will represent all cities, and all citizens irrespective of locality."

TWO MARRIAGES.

Two weddings took place Tuesday evening. At the residence of C. A. Wilson on Park Street, Fred G. Engler of Enderlin, N. D., and Lillian Wilson were married in the presence of the bride's relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Engler will reside at Enderlin.

Later in the same evening a more elaborate wedding occurred in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Crook, South Thayer Street, when their daughter, Elsie was united in marriage to Carl Alfred Carlson.

About thirty invited guests witnessed the ceremony and sat down to an elaborately supplied and served banquet. The couple have already furnished a pleasant home on Keenon Street where they will receive their friends. Rev. A. G. Wilson officiated at both these weddings.

CAUGHT A BIG FISH.

Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Anderson and niece, Miss Ella Kline, brought back with them from Rhinelander Wednesday, a 25 pound muscogee as a sample of the big fish that abound in the waters in that vicinity. This particular specimen was caught by Mr. Anderson's niece, Miss Edith Brown, and Miss Kline. Miss Brown hooked it and Miss Kline rowed to shore where they got out and stood on solid ground to land it. Miss Kline attempted to grab it with an ear but Mr. Anderson had to come to the rescue and stab it with a knife before it could be dispatched. Several of the neighbors here enjoyed a generous cut from its delicious carcass.—Stevens Point Journal.

BELLILE IS WANTED

Chas. Bellile has been offered a position as umpire in the State League next season and will probably accept. Early in the present base ball season, Charley was asked to sign with the organization but felt that he could not rightly leave the Hubs. As an umpire Charley has acquired considerable notoriety throughout the state and is said to be one of the most careful and fairest men who ever awarded a decision on the diamond. A league umpire receives a good compensation for his services which fact Charley also appreciates.

BASE BALL NOTES.

The Antigo team was composed mostly of railway men, who were good natured and sociable lot, as well as gentlemen and made many friends while here. The Hubs will play Hurley on the latter's grounds Sunday, and it is expected that a number of local "fans" will accompany the team to that city.

The Whipping of Ned

By PHILIP VERRILL MICHOLS.

"So you're going up to Garnet Peak to lick your brother?" said the owner of Paradise hotel, speaking to a great fellow who had just arrived. "Excuse the question, Wally, but ain't this the second time you've come back to do the whipping of Ned?"

"Third time, Zach," corrected the traveler. "He has licked me twice since I started to grow. He used to lick me regular every time we fought. Darn him! I always said I'd be coming back some day to lick him good for all the thumpings he has given me, and I reckon I'm big enough now to do the racket up to the handle. When does the stage start for Garnet Peak?"

"In 15 minutes," said Zach.

Over the sagebrush ridges and down through the barren canyons the stage went winding monotonously. The road was narrow, the scenery grey and dull. Wallace Rocklin rode on the box with the driver till he felt himself growing drowsy. As the sun disappeared he climbed down, propped himself in a corner of the coach, and went to sleep.

As the horses plodded sturdily around the last of the curves, before the level of the summit should be won, a deep voice broke the stillness: "Stop. Throw up your hands!"

With a sudden jolt that heaved Rocklin forward in his seat, the coach ceased to grind the sand.

"Now, toss down the company's express," ordered the voice, "and don't you tackle no fooling. Do you hear?"

The masked figure came nearer, with his weapon held in readiness for use. The treasure box came into sight without delay, and then crashed down to the brush. At that instant a form shot from the coach and harked itself recklessly against the robber and his gun, flailing the weapon to the rocks, where it struck and exploded a barrel. The report rent the air, and the horses, plunging in fright, made a dash for the summit and disappeared with the stage.

Wrapped in a savage embrace, the two men battled in the throes of deadly combat. Clutching and heaving, they scuffled across the road, with arms tense with effort, their legs as rigid as pillars of steel.

The robber's fingers dug in the shoulder of his foe, while the wrist and arm worked underneath the chin. He suddenly gave Rocklin's head a backward jolt that nearly broke his neck.

Pushing the robber sharply to the rear against the hill, Rocklin heaved him off his feet and crashed him heavily down on a rock.

A crunching of ribs and a growl of rage and pain aroused an added fury in the robber. In a spasm of movement he dragged his toe to the earth on his breast, and over and over they rolled. Sure of his victory now, and terrible in his calm, Rocklin dragged his antagonist's arm across and under the latter's back, and he heard the snap when the bone was cracked in the shoulder.

Again the bellow of rage burst forth. The hand that was free dug a piece of granite from the sand and thumped it on Rocklin's ear. The latter trembled. By the greatest effort he kept his senses from fleeing; he fastened his clutch on the robber's throat with a wailing strength. The robber rolled him suddenly over, they were poised for an instant on a rocky ledge, and then, kicking loose, the man in the mask gave the other a thrust that toppled him over the plunge. Down he rolled on a barren declivity and disappeared in an avalanche of earth and rocks.

When his eyes slowly opened Rocklin found the sun shining in his face. He lay on the earth blinking, grimly painted with patches of blood.

It was late afternoon when at last he came to the ranch of a German in the canyon.

For more than a week, as a convalescent, Rocklin limped about in the sunshine of Springmead's place.

"I've got to go to Garnet Peak," he announced every day; and at last, with many a clap on the back, he went.

The climb was steep, the afternoon sultry. He found himself willing to sit on the boulders often to gather his strength. "I don't know whether I can lick him now or not," he muttered; "but I reckon he wouldn't make me fight it out tonight."

He made his way about the ridge. It was now less than a mile to Garnet Peak, and the slope was pierced here and there by the tunnels of the miners. The sun had gone down when he approached one of the claims, and glanced about at old familiar features. When he came to the mine he stood on the camp, edily saddened. The mine had raved.

He knocked presently on the door of a cabin. There was no reply. Responding to his pressure, the door swung open on the darkness of the room.

"Ned," he said. "Ned Rocklin... it's me—brother Wally." His eyes grew accustomed to the shadows. He avoided the stools, a table, and a box, making his way toward the bunk. Suddenly he halted; a pair of feverish eyes were staring from the blankets. "Why, Ned," said he, "are you sick, old man? What's the matter?"

The man in the bunk closed his eyes. Rocklin hurried to light a candle, and to run for water. He mixed up a drink and pressed it to the swollen lips.

"Ned," he murmured; "don't you know me, Ned?"

A feeble smile illumined the face on the pillow; the eyes came open in a wistful appeal. Slowly the man drew his hand from beneath the blankets, and gave a tremendous pressure to the rough, big hand of his brother.

"Are you sick, old man?" Wallace repeated, anxiously. "Is it fever, Ned?"

"Smashed," he whispered.

"Smashed—in the tunnel?—the cave in the tunnel?"

His brother closed his eyes as before.

"Oh, Ned, and you aying here alone, starving! Hasn't anybody helped you—nobody come?"

"Been—too much—by—myself," Ned whispered painfully.

"Yes, yes. I know you have—you always have; but what can I do? Whereabouts are you smashed?"

"In—side," said the sufferer.

Wallace groaned. "And to think of me coming all the way from Silver Creek for to give you a lick!" He failed to note the weary smile that flitted across his brother's face as he pulled off his coat to go to work.

A fire was soon blazing in the chimney. "Shall I go for a doctor? Is there anyone in camp?" Wallace inquired eagerly. "Have you got any Malinnet? What about a doctor?"

"Don't want—him—now," said the feeble voice.

"Darn—hard—luck—for more—than—a—year," said the voice of Ned again, finally. Wallace removed his hand.

"You ought not to talk," said he; "you haven't got the strength."

Ned merely turned his face a shade to the wall. "Me and—Lucy—was—married," he slowly continued, "three—years—ago this—month."

"You and Lucy?" Wallace started to his feet.

"Yes, Wall. . . We—loved—each other—a—heap. I went—home—and stayed—several—months. Left her—"

"Now, toss down the company's express," ordered the voice, "and don't you tackle no fooling. Do you hear?"

The masked figure came nearer, with his weapon held in readiness for use. The treasure box came into sight without delay, and then crashed down to the brush. At that instant a form shot from the coach and harked itself recklessly against the robber and his gun, flailing the weapon to the rocks, where it struck and exploded a barrel. The report rent the air, and the horses, plunging in fright, made a dash for the summit and disappeared with the stage.

Wrapped in a savage embrace, the two men battled in the throes of deadly combat. Clutching and heaving, they scuffled across the road, with arms tense with effort, their legs as rigid as pillars of steel.

The robber's fingers dug in the shoulder of his foe, while the wrist and arm worked underneath the chin. He suddenly gave Rocklin's head a backward jolt that nearly broke his neck.

OF AID TO HOSTESS

"King's Daughters" Give a Measuring Party—A Fore-handed Hostess—Unique Engagement Announcement—Choosing Partners.

A Measuring Party.

Two young women, who belong to a circle of "King's Daughters," have issued invitations for a unique affair to be given at the home of one of the girls. The thing given below explains the nature of the entertainment. There will be a short programme and daintily served refreshments.

A "Measuring" party is given for you; 'Tis something novel, something new. We young ladies ask all to come, And each one bring to aid us some: Two cents for every foot you're tall, We'll measure you on foot or wall; An extra cent for each inch give, And thereby show how high you live. With music and song, refreshment and pleasure, We'll meet one and all at our party of "Measure."

A wise hostess was seen making a tour of the "favor" counter before departing for her summer home far away from the haunts of men, but where she always entertained the most delightful house parties. She has the reputation of being able to produce at once any article that may be desired, no matter how impossible it may be to obtain it. This is the secret: In a closet to which she alone holds the key there is a supply of the most unusual things, and the last thing she does before leaving town is to consult a list, which has been many months in making, and here are a few of the items:

Bottle of gold ink and one of white. Extra tennis balls. Dinner cards. Favors for "Jack's" college dinner. "Jap" things for the canoe club dance.

Snapping mottoes for "Folly's" birthday.

Candles of all sizes. Prizes for "bridge" party. Extra fans and lanterns. Ball room pencils and programmes. Bolts of "baby" ribbon. Tissue paper napkins. Masks.

Supply of scissors and paper dolls of all sizes.

This list solved the problem of why this wonderful little woman never made distracted trips to the cross-roads store, how she was ready for any scheme proposed by the young people, why she could make the children forget that the day was rainy, and why she was called the "most popular hostess on the island."

To Choose Partners.

For choosing partners try matching animal crackers, which are hidden throughout the rooms. Matching flowers is another pretty way when the company is not too large to have enough varieties of flowers. Have two blossoms alike; carnations of all shades, roses, violets, pansies, lilies, etc.

Another way is to put the initials of the first name of the girls in envelopes and pass them to the men; the cracker alphabet letters to be obtained from the large grocery stores may be used. Of course this method is only of use in a crowd well known to each other. A jolly way to pair off is to play the old-fashioned game of silent "blind man's bluff." Make a circle, blindfold one at a time, place in the center with a cane, then the one the blind man touches is the partner. Of course it is arranged so that a "boy" points to a "girl" and vice versa.

MADAME MERRIL

The Prettiest of Doilies

Chain 6, join.

First row—Chain 3 for first treble crochet, 19 more, making 20 t c in ring, join.

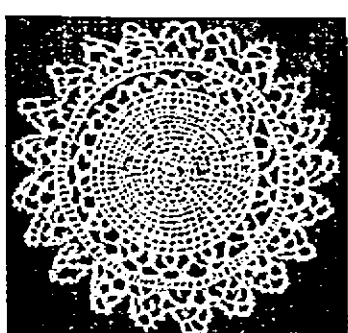

Second row—2 t c in every one on first row, making 40 in all, join.

Third row—Increase again on 2d st, join. This gives 18 widenings, which are continued to the 13th row, when they are decreased enough to keep the work smooth, the last row having almost no widenings. This finishes the center, which has 15 rows.

Insertion—Fourteen double crochet along the edge of center, turn, ch 10, fasten back in 7th st, turn, half fill loop with 6 d c, equally separated by 2 p's, (made thus: ch 5, fasten in 1st st of center, ch 16, fasten back in 7th st on edge of center turn, fill loop with 14 d c equally separated by 6 p's, finish filling last loop with 6 d c and 2 p's, make 7 d c along edge, turn, ch 16, fasten in top of last loop, turn, fill loop with 14 d c and 6 p's, as at first. Repeat around mat.

Now ch 11, and catch in highest point of each loop, all around insertion, make 2 rows of plain t c, widening enough to keep the work smooth, then make the border.

Border—Fourteen d c on edge of mat, turn, ch 10, fasten back in 7th st, turn, half fill loop with 6 d c and 2 p's (as in the insertion), turn, ch 16, fasten back in 7th st on edge, turn, fill loop with 14 d c and 6 p's, finish filling last loop with 6 d c and 2 p's, on edge, turn, ch 16, fasten in top of last loop, turn, one-third fill with 2 d c, p's, 2 d c, p's, 1 d c, turn, ch 12, fasten back in 10th st (or top of opposite loop), turn, half fill with 2

HOT DAY PHILOSOPHY

To beguile one's mind into the belief, nay, knowledge, that the hot weather, although perhaps slightly enervating, is not, after all, especially distressing, is part of a wise philosophy. It is possible for people to heat themselves to a degree of discomfort quite unnecessary and exasperating, and most wearing in its effect on the nerves, by dwelling mentally on what they are enduring. The sensible person goes on with her work or her recreation and gives as little thought as may be to the rising temperature.

Darkened rooms are cooler than those on which the uninterrupted sun falls all day long, yet it is an error to try to see or read where there is insufficient light, says the Chicago Tribune.

If idleness is ever pardoned, it is when summer indicates that the period of relaxation is at hand. During the extreme heat of midday and early afternoon women may well avail themselves of every opportunity to be tranquil and reserve for the cool mornings and evenings the duties which require exertion.

A screened veranda, if one lives in a neighborhood where gnats and mosquitoes are numerous, gives the family an agreeable immunity from these small pests, and makes it possible to enjoy the summer evening in the air, so that the bed need not be sought till the daytime heat has abated.

Tough Test.

Poet—Why is it Quips has stopped writing jokes on the boarding house breakfast of late? Does he think it is a chestnut?

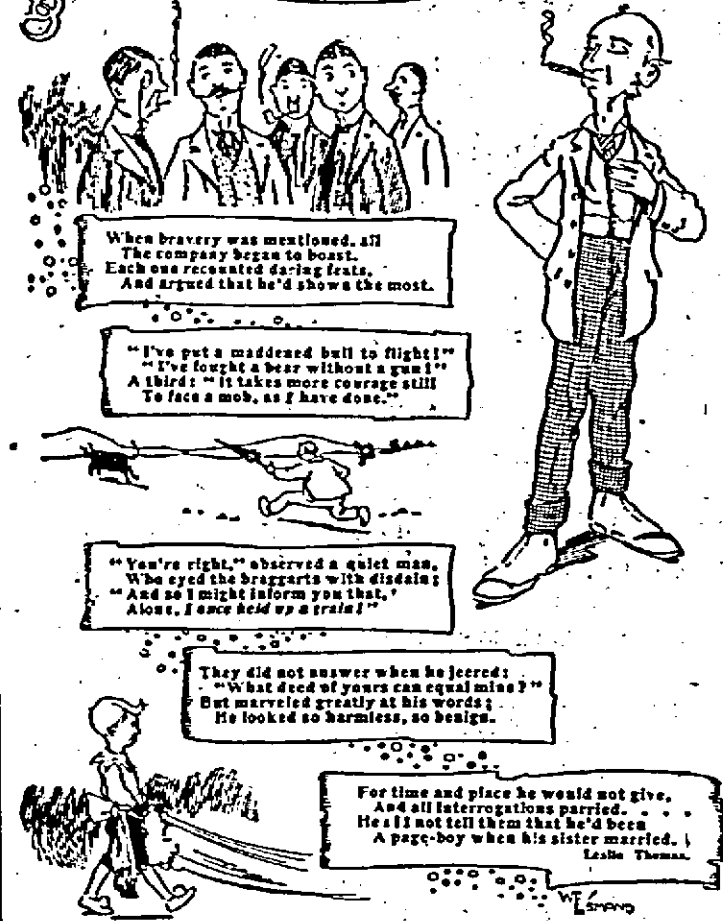

Bard—No, but you see Quips has started boarding of late, and he finds the tough breakfast is no joke.—Chicago Daily News.

THE HERO

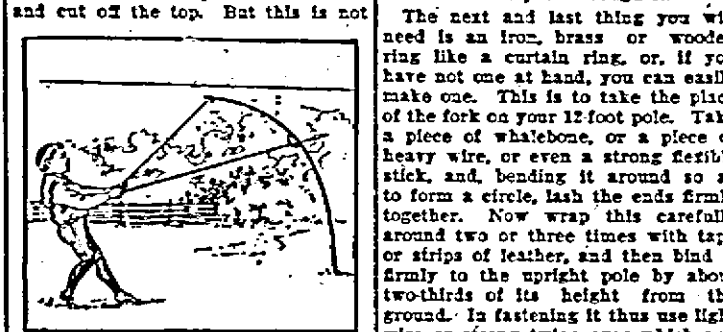

A SIEGE GUN.

How an Outdoor Toy Can Be Built Which Will Give Lots of Amusement.

It is hardly likely that any of our boys will have to stand a siege by a hostile force or be actually engaged in laying siege to the stronghold of an enemy, but almost every one of them will be interested in this siege gun. It is very simple and easy to make and will shoot a long way, much farther, in fact, than you can shoot with a bow and arrow; further even than an air rifle will carry.

First you will need a long, straight sapling of hickory or some other tough, springy wood, oak, ash or hemlock. If you can find one growing in the spot from which you want to shoot, so much the better; all you have to do is to strip off the branches and cut off the top. But this is not at all likely. You will probably want the engine of warfare planted on your own premises.

Cut a tough pole about 12 feet long and three inches thick at the base, and carefully trim off all the branches, leaving, however, a fork about four feet from the top in case a limb is growing there. If not, never mind, you can replace the fork with a perfect substitute. Dig a hole two feet deep in the place where you wish your siege gun to be permanently mounted. Place the pole, base down, in this hole and wedge around it as many large stones as the hole will contain. These must be well wedged against the base of the pole. Now fill up the hole with earth, packing it down hard every few inches until it is flush with the rest of the ground.

Now bend over the top of the pole and about two inches from the end fasten a strong piece of twine about five feet long. In the other end of the twine tie a large knot.

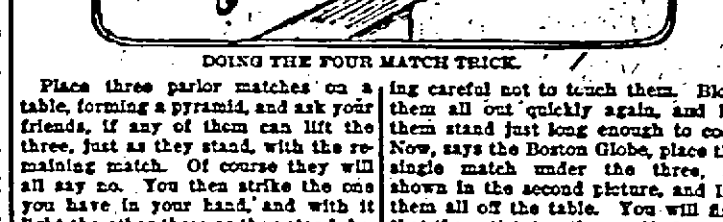

Your siege gun will shoot a queer sort of ammunition, neither bullets nor arrows, but a long spear or lance! For this you need a straight stick five feet long. You must scrape its edges carefully until it is perfectly round all but about three inches from one end, which you may leave square if the stick should happen to be four-sided instead of already round. To the other end of the stick you may fasten a regular barbed spearhead if you care to make one from iron or sheet tin, or you may drive a long nail in this end for your spear point, weighing it with strips of lead bound around the end of the stick with catgut or light wire. In the square or base end of your spear cut a notch large enough to hold the twine, but small enough so that the knot on the twine will not pass through it.

The next and last thing you will need is an iron, brass or wooden ring like a curtain ring, or, if you have not one at hand, you can easily make one. This is to take the place of the fork on your 12-foot pole. Take a piece of whalebone, or a piece of heavy wire, or even a strong flexible stick, and bending it around so as to form a circle, lash the ends firmly together. Now wrap this carefully around two or three times with tape or strips of leather, and then bind it firmly to the upright pole by about two-thirds of its height from the ground. In fastening it thus use light wire or strong twine over which you have rubbed a piece of soap till it is thoroughly greased.

Now you are ready to fire your first shot, says Good Literature. Put your spear through the ring, place the knot in the twine in the notch cut in the butt of your spear, pull back the spear until its head is nearly to the ring, as the illustration shows, and then let it go. If your pole is a good one the heavy spear will be hurled 200 yards or even more.

The best kind of spears are made from alder sticks or long reeds such as grow in marshes. They are very light and you can usually find a dozen or more growing together, so that you can get a lot of spears at the same time. With these for your ammunition, you will find that your siege gun will outshoot anything your friends may possess, except those who may have regular powder and shot firearms, and even those will have to use something bigger than "22 cal. shot" to beat you.

THE FOUR MATCH TRICK.

Place three parlor matches on a table, forming a pyramid, and ask your friends, if any of them can lift the three, just as they stand, with the remaining match. Of course they will all say no. You then strike the one you have in your hand, and with it light the other three as they stand, being careful not to touch them. Blow them all out quickly again, and let them stand just long enough to cool. Now, says the Boston Globe, place the single match under the three, as all say no. You then strike the one you have in your hand, and with it light the other three as they stand, being careful not to touch them. Blow them all out quickly again, and let them stand just long enough to cool. Now, says the Boston Globe, place the single match under the three, as all say no. THE NEW NORTH.

LOWELL & COMPANY, PUBLISHERS.

F. A. LOWELL, EDITOR AND MANAGER.

The Sentinel wants Davidson, the people should beware.

The Argentine University has conferred the degree of L. L. D. on Sec. of State Root.

Since the days of Pat Crow, the kidnapper, no fugitive from justice attempted to appear in so many places at the same time as Stensland.

If some of the stones thrown by the ranch strikers near Buenos Ayres had injured Sec. of State Root, instead of the Argentine officials there might have been an immediate chance for arbitration at the very "Root".

The Sentinel informs us that this is the golden opportunity to crush the political influence of Robert M. LaFollette. Nominate Davidson and you have satisfied the ambition of the Sentinel, which has been the organ of corporate interests.

Another earthquake horror is recorded affecting the lives and property of a far greater number of people than that of the California disaster. In Chile it is now winter and the suffering must be extreme. As it would take a month or more for supplies from the U. S. to reach that country, no doubt the death from starvation will be great.

Senator LaFollette was never more sincere in his life than he is at present in his advocacy of Irvine L. Lenroot for Governor. He believes that Mr. Lenroot's experience as Speaker of the Assembly and his personal qualities, especially fit him for the position. Mr. Lenroot has ability and aggressiveness sufficient to carry on the reforms begun by LaFollette.

It is LaFollette who must be attacked. He is not to be allowed to have or express an opinion about the education and fitness of a man, who seeks the highest and most important office in the state. It is Rossism when it comes from LaFollette. When it comes from the Sentinel and the rest of the stalwart brood it is probably patriotism.

The delegates of the Danville district unanimously renominated Speaker Cannon for congress and launched his boom for president. By the time it reached the East not an echo could be heard. Some of Joe's friends say that Roosevelt could not run the government without him. Then let it go to smash. It is too bad to have so large a populace rest on the shoulders of a single man and be three score and ten.

All is harmony again at Rio. The sub-committee of the Pan-American Congress to which was submitted the drafting of a request to The Hague tribunal to consider the incorporation of the Drago doctrine in the code of international laws is said to have arrived at unanimity regarding the nature of its report, which will be favorable to barring financial indebtedness as a cause of war.—Evening Wisconsin.

C. P. Cary, State Supt. of Schools, inspected the teachers' institute at the High School building, last Thursday. He stated that the present institute showed a decided uplift of intelligence in the country teacher. A large number of those in attendance have formerly been students in our City Schools.

Mr. Cary succeeded in influencing the legislature to provide a district school inspector. He also brought about the establishment of annual School Board Conventions, at which the district school inspector is to be present and suggest the needs of the schools. Although only a year has elapsed since securing the above acts, the district schools have made marked improvement in equipment and general enthusiasm has been created among them. Mr. Wood, the appointee for this position is largely responsible for the splendid success of this work. His broad field as a teacher and his tact as an executive officer have not only furthered the interests of the country schools but have brought them into intimate association with the state department.

DAVIDSON ALL THERE IS TO IT.

To Gov. James O. Davidson:

You are a good man. You are a good citizen. You are the kind of citizen that has made America great. America is proud of men like you. Your integrity is above question. You are clean and honest and loyal and earnest. You are high-minded and honorable. You have the qualities of character which make a good citizen, a good husband and a good father. You are amiable and lovable and kind.

But you are not a statesman. You know you're not. You have not the capacities for statesmanship, for the constructive statesmanship Wisconsin needs. You are not a leader. You never have been. You never will be. It is not in you. This is nothing to derogate in you or of your character. It is just the plain truth, plainly spoken. Not all men can be leaders. Some men must be followers. And you happen to be of the latter class. That is all.

You have filled an important place, however, in the political life of Wisconsin in recent years. You have been of invaluable help in the reform movement in this state. You have done good work and efficient work, but you have not been the leader of this movement. Indeed, there would never have been a reform movement if you had been depended upon for leadership. You have been a great help, but yours has not been the guiding hand. You have been a supporter, a follower.

You say that you believed in the progressive programme back in the days of A. R. Hall. And so you did. Of course you did. You believe in it now. No one questions your sincerity. But A. R. Hall was the leader in those days, not you. And LaFollette has been the leader since.

Gov. Davidson, it would make you weep, it would make any good man weep to go about the state and hear what the Half-Breeds, your former associates and friends, are saying about you. They have considered you the embodiment of all that is good and true, and they have loved you for it. But now you are in a conspiracy—not an intentional conspiracy on your part—to destroy the whole movement for which you and they have fought so hard. And they are growing bitter and harsh in their criticism of you. Can you blame them?

Here you are in a combination with Mr. Connor, the chairman of the Republican state central committee. You never intended to join a combination of this kind. You have been led into it unconsciously. The fact is, governor, Mr. Connor is too shrewd for you.

He is not a man of your type. He is a politician, with a long head and a keen vision. And he has an ambition which is directing his political activities. Think you that he cares the snap of his finger about your being elected governor, except as your election would be a step towards the realization of his own ambition; which is to join the Millionaire's club at Washington? Think you that he cares about being lieutenant governor?

Think about Mr. Connor a bit. Has he ever been a reformer, such as you and Senator LaFollette have been? Is not his interest in this campaign the senatorship and the destruction of LaFollette? Don't make a mistake as to this. You must choose between Connor and LaFollette. The Half-Breed field is not big enough for both of them. Mr. Connor is not the man to play second fiddle. Which of them do you prefer? Your course in the present campaign will show.

Not for worlds would we have you know, governor, all your former political associates are saying about you. And yet you are bound to know if you continue in your present course. The feeling is becoming bitter and these things are certain to be said in public before the campaign closes if it is carried through to the end as it has been begun. Do you want this, governor? Can you afford it?

You do not believe what your pretended friends are saying when they tell you that LaFollette showed special confidence in you when he left you in the governor's chair. You recollect it was not until after the legislature had adjourned and its work had been finished that he gave up the governorship. Indeed, a special session was called and adjourned.

You do not believe what your pretended friends are saying when they tell you that you are entitled to a nomination for governor, why are you so entitled? You have been honored, highly honored. You have held office for long years. The people have given you their confidence again and again. There is many a man who has worked just as hard in the cause of reform and who has been as faithful and sincere and as able who has never received recognition whatever for his work. Just an approving conscience—that is all. You are not entitled to sympathy on this score, governor. Do you truly think you are?

We ask you to ponder over this. If you become governor of Wisconsin the reform movement will stop. It will be a thing of the past. And where will you be? What will your fellow citizens and the men and women of the future think of you? Do you want to forfeit all the good will you have won in the years past? Think it over and see if you want to pay the price you are asked to pay for a nomination for governor.

Your running mate, Mr. Connor, the real leader in your combination, says that the reform movement is over. Here are his words:

"The people are now looking for results from past struggles, rather than to engage in new ones."

Do you believe that? Do you intend to give up the struggle and allow the state to drift back to where it was before the reform movement began? Do you?

The corporations which have fought reform so long in this state look upon you as their last resort. You are their only hope. They are all for you, and through you they hope to down the man who drove them to defeat again and again in the past. Does that please you? Do you think that the stalwart newspapers of the state are supporting you, as every one of them is doing because of their admiration for your admirable qualities of character? Or because they believe in the programme in which you claim to believe? Don't you think it, Governor?

When you are governor and Connor is senator and LaFollette is down and out—as he will be if Mr. Connor's hopes are realized—what then? Things will be beyond your control then, and you will have to stand sponsor for what other men, your corporation friends, do. Do you want to do that?

There are a lot of things for you to think about, governor. And you ought to think them over carefully. Why, for instance, is it, do you suppose that the Milwaukee Free Press does not come out openly for you? Its owner, Isaac Stephenson is for you. Why not the paper? It dare not. It would reap ruination in ninety days if it were openly to antagonize Senator LaFollette and the men and voters who stand with him. The storm is coming and will break soon. They escape by keeping still. You cannot. You are going to bear the brunt of it. You must carry the load. Do you want it? Do you want to sacrifice yourself and your old friends in this way?

Why do you suppose all these conferences, with Connor ever on the alert, have been held in Milwaukee this last week? Don't you know what is back of them? They are not being held because the men who participate in them want to see you governor. Men like Babcock care nothing about you except as you can be of help to them. And that is what you are lost now. You are their stalking-horse. They are hiding behind you. They hope to gain their wishes through your popularity. Are you willing to be used this way? Alas for you, governor, and your good name, if you are.

Think it over, governor. You are paying too much for your little bauble. Get from under. Pull out. That is sound advice, given with sincere admiration for you as a citizen and as a man and with the kindest good-will.

Without you, Gov. Davidson, the combination to destroy LaFollette and the reform movement would go to pieces in a week!—Milwaukee Journal.

CLOSE AT EIGHT AGAIN.

Many of the merchants, who have been closing their stores at 6 p. m. for the last month, have returned to the old custom of closing at eight o'clock.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

Petition for macadamizing and curbing of Frederick Street from the intersection of Thayer and Frederick Street to Onida Ave. signed by W. E. Brown and others. Also Thayer Street from High Street to North Base of Hill lot E, signed by Abner Connor and others. Also Onida Ave. between River Street and Frederick Street, signed by Chas. F. Barnes and others, was presented to Council.

The following resolution was then introduced by Ald. Calkins: Resolved by the Mayor and Common Council of the City of Rhinelander, That it is the sense of the Council that the streets and portions thereof named below be improved by constructing thereon a first class macadamized roadway with combined cement curb and gutter. Frederick Street from its intersection with Thayer Street to the west line of the east Base of Onida Ave. River Street from Stevens Street to Onida Ave. Onida Ave. from River Street to Frederick Street and Thayer Street from High Street to north Base of Hill lot E.

red of real estate by reason of the said improvement, the entire cost of contemplated work and the amount that should be assessed according to law to each parcel of real estate as benefits accruing thereby by reason of such improvement.

Moved by Ald. Peacor seconded by Ald. Calkins that the resolution be adopted as read. Carried, all voting aye as the roll was called.

The following petition was read: To the Common Council, City of Rhinelander: We, the undersigned, and property owners on Dahl Street, this City, respectfully ask of the following improvements and changes on our street:

1st. That a sewer be laid in said street from Dahl Ave. to Onida Ave. connecting with the Onida Ave. sewer.

2d. That said street be paved with vitrified brick from Onida Ave. to Dahl Ave. 3d. That the name Dahl Street be changed to "Edgemoor Place."

As to the sewer, there is a large population in this part of the City that is in urgent need of relief. We are aware that a gravity connection with the Onida Ave. sewer cannot be had, but similar emergencies are being successfully met by employing a sewer pump at small cost operated automatically by an electric motor.

We earnestly petition that the above improvements be made with as little delay as possible. Signed,

R. C. Dayton and others.

Said petition was upon motion referred to the Board of Public Works.

A petition signed by A. W. Brown and others for the removal of the contemplated park located at Brown Street near under construction was read to the Council.

The following resolution was read: Resolved by the Mayor and the Common Council of the City of Rhinelander, That the Board of Public Works be and they are hereby instructed to arrange for the removal of the Park now constructed on North Brown Street, and for the replacing of same by macadam.

Moved by Ald. Dorock seconded by Ald. Calkins that the resolution be adopted as read. Carried, the Aldermen voting as follows: Anderson, Calkins, Dorock, Gary, Hanson, Morrill, Peacor, Roepcke and Dodd voting aye and Aldermen C. H. Roepcke and Smith voting no.

The following report was read: To the Common Council, City of Rhinelander: We, the undersigned Board of Public Works, hereby report and certify that the contract entered on the 27th day of July, 1906, by and between the City of Rhinelander and T. J. McGrath for macadamizing and otherwise improving streets named in said contract has been fully performed and completed and recommended, that said contractor be paid all amounts still due on said contract. Signed,

Board of Public Works.

The following resolution was read: Resolved by the Mayor and Common Council of the City of Rhinelander, That the proper officers be and they are hereby instructed to pay all amounts due T. J. McGrath on contract entered into with him for macadamizing dated July 27th, 1905, to deliver to said T. J. McGrath all special improvement bonds so which he is entitled under said contract. Offered by Ald. Hans Rodd.

Moved by Ald. Peacor seconded by Ald. Rodd that the report be accepted and the resolution be adopted as read. Carried, all voting aye.

The following resolution was read: Resolved by the Mayor and the Common Council of the City of Rhinelander, That a Committee of five be appointed by the Mayor and including the Mayor as Chairman to investigate the waterworks situation with a view to obtaining a satisfactory adjustment of same. Offered by Ald. Hans Anderson.

Moved by Ald. Dorock seconded by Ald. Peacor that the resolution be adopted as read. Carried.

The Mayor then appointed A. D. Setton and Ald. Anderson Gary and Smith.

The following petition was read: To the Common Council of the City of Rhinelander, in Onida County Wisconsin: The undersigned, residents of the City of the Fifth and Sixth wards of said City as indicated below, respectfully petition your Hon. Body to open and extend Onida Ave. street located in said Fifth and Sixth wards, as follows: Said Onida Ave. to be opened and extended as this present with through, over and across the right of way and yards of the Chicago & North Western Railway Co., where same intersect said street at the boundary line between the said Fifth and Sixth wards of said City; so that said street when so opened and extended will form a direct and continuous route over and across the above mentioned property of said railway company, and connect with said street as now planned, on either side thereof.

Dated August 7th, 1906.

Signed by E. A. Forbes and others.

Moved by Ald. Roepcke seconded by Ald. Anderson that said petition be referred to the Board of Public Works for their report. Carried.

The Board of Public Works then submitted this their report:

Round Oak Furnace

Heat in the cellar means just so much less heat in the house. A given amount of fuel produces a given amount of heat. If some of that heat is lost in the cellar and some of it goes up the chimney there is not much left to heat the rooms. The Round Oak Furnace being air-tight may be regulated to burn uniformly at any speed and makes possible still greater economy. It takes less fuel to keep a house warm than to heat it after it has become chilled. We will furnish you a heating plan, free of charge, made by an expert if you will send us a sketch giving dimensions and all details.

Our Furnace Book, "Warmth and Comfort" will interest every one who has a heating problem. It gives valuable information on furnaces and how to run them. Will mail you a copy free upon request. Estate of P. D. BECKWITH, Dowagiac, Michigan. For details LEWIS HARDWARE COMPANY.

THE CITY IN BRIEF

Dan Moriarty of Ledyardville has spent the last week here calling on friends and attending to business matters.

The editor of The New North and family spent a few days last week at Lake George, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Cary.

Marlin Griffin of Stevens Point, a well known woodsman who at one time had charge of camp in this section, has gone to Panama where he will estimate a large tract of timber. His duties will keep him there about three months.

D. T. Matteson, our ex-chief of police and former deputy sheriff, was over from Ogen this week for a brief visit. He is making a success of the hotel business and finds it a profitable venture.

It is rumored that Ed Miles, who has had charge of night service at the post office, will resign his position. It is to be hoped it is only a rumor for the post office would sustain a loss by his absence.

The editor of The New North has purchased the Stapleton building just north of our present location and in the month of October will move the office to the store now occupied by the Johnson & Peterson grocery store.

That the great mass of Americans like comedy is proved daily by the success which is achieved both by humorous books and humorous plays. "Lena Rivers," by Mary J. Holmes, as a novel, has been read by countless thousands and its success has been terrific. Last season a play was made of it and the humorous scenes which it unfolded has caused it to head the list of popular American plays of the present time.

Due to break-down on engine number 8, the East bound Soo limited train was over seven hours late in arriving here, Friday morning. The train remained about an hour to allow the passengers to partake of breakfast. Many were G. A. R. Veterans, members of the Massachusetts Grand Army Club of Boston and were enroute home from the Encampment in Minneapolis.

Schlatter, be of the lengthy tresses and venerable beard, left Rhinelander this week for Antigo. Schlatter claims to be a divine healer but judging from the poor attendance which greeted his meetings while here, it is difficult to see just what is his graft. Evidently Rhinelander people have little faith in the line of dope handed out by this gentleman. If he meets with the same orations in all the cities which he visits we are afraid that Schlatter will soon be obliged to get a hair cut and go to work.

SOUTH AMERICAN QUAKE.

One of the worst earthquake disasters in the history of South America has occurred in Chile, with the city of Valparaiso as the focus point of the calamity, according to cables from Valparaiso as the focus point of the South American points.

The captain of a steamship which arrived from San Francisco says the situation is worse than that following the disaster at San Francisco.

The funds collected in Chile for festivities in connection with the inauguration of President-elect Montt will be distributed among the sufferers from the earthquake.

Dispatches from Valparaiso state that a moderate estimate of the fatalities is 2,000 and that the property loss may be as high as $250,000,000.

At Santiago many of the best public and private buildings were wrecked. The loss of life there was augmented by the panic which seized the people, many of whom threw themselves from the balconies of their homes.

Provisions and thousands of tons of flour, wheat and rice are held in store at Valparaiso and about it is not believed a food famine will occur.

The water pipes of Valparaiso were broken and the water poured through the streets. There is even lack of water for drinking purposes.

The hills surrounding Valparaiso suffered but slightly. More than 60,000 persons have taken refuge there.

Advices have been received that the towns of Valparaiso and Casablanca were entirely destroyed, and that San Felipe, Rancagua, Melipilla and Llanillo were severely damaged.

At Concepcion the shock was severe and a number of persons were killed or injured. The towns of Renos, San Fernando, Quilota and San Antonio and many villages are in ruins.

Milk costs two Chilean dollars a liter, and it is almost impossible to obtain meat, even at high prices.

The railroads are all destroyed. It is feared the town of Los Andes, in the province of Aconcagua, has been destroyed.

In addition to the fear of earthquakes the Valparaiso people are in constant dread of storms, which sweep in suddenly and frequently from the sea.

Following the first shock fire started in Valparaiso and hundreds of the inhabitants perished in the flames.

Prior to the spreading of the flames many persons lost their lives under the falling ruins of buildings shaken from their foundations by the first shock of earthquake.

The earthquake interrupted cable facilities to lower South American points.

NOMINATED FOR CONGRESS.

Speaker Cannon's boom for the president was launched at Danville, Ill. when the speaker was nominated for congress by acclamation by the Republican congressional convention of the Eighteenth district.

George W. Price, Galesburg, Ill., was nominated for congress by Republicans of the Fifteenth district.

Congressman William A. Rodenberg was renominated at the Republican congressional convention of the Twenty-second district. The Democrats renominated James J. McHenry.

The Republicans of the Seventeenth Illinois district renominated John A. Sterling for congress.

Republicans of the Seventeenth congressional district nominated John A. Sterling of Bloomington, Ill., for congress. The Democrats nominated L. W. McNeill, of Eureka.

The Democrats of the Twenty-first Illinois congressional district nominated former congressman Ben F. Caldwell of Champaign. The Republicans nominated Congressman Zeno J. Rivers of Litchfield.

London.—In a dispatch from Valparaiso, without date, the correspondent of the Daily Mail says:

"Sixty per cent. of this city has been completely destroyed. The death toll is heavy. There were 53 shocks during Thursday night, and there have been 300 more since then. The tremors still continue. One hundred thousand people are homeless and destitute. Water is giving out. Surrounding towns have been destroyed and the railroad has been cut."

Valparaiso.—While confusion abounds in the city, it is at last possible to gauge the full extent of the destruction done by the successive earthquake shocks of Thursday and Friday.

The most conservative estimate of the dead places the number at 2,000, while it is certain that scores of bodies lie buried in the ruins which remain untouched.

The damage to property is enormous. $250,000,000 probably will not cover the loss.

The fires which threatened to complete the ruin done by the earthquakes have been checked, but at the cost of the city's water supply.

City is Desolate.

The ruined city presents a scene of indescribable desolation. It practically has been abandoned. Earthquakes and fire have left more than 100,000 of its population homeless.

Those whose homes escaped destruction long ago deserted them in terror.

Almost the entire population is encamped in the hills surrounding the city. The plight of the refugees is dreadful. Without adequate shelter through two bitterly cold and rainy nights, they are now existing practically without food.

Famine Threatens.

A famine both of food and water now threatens to add horror to the devastation. Milk is almost unobtainable, and meat is a luxury beyond the reach of all but those who can pay dearly for it.

Ask Wage Scale Conference.

Cleveland, O.—A committee from the United States Window Glass Manufacturers' association, in session here, called upon representatives of the Amalgamated Window Glass Workers to confer on the wage scale.

Two Hurt by Fireworks.

Conneville, Pa.—Two persons were seriously hurt during a fireworks exhibition which was a closing feature of a three days' centennial celebration. A spark set off ten giant rockets which shot into a crowd.

Plethora of Cash.

San Francisco.—With money pouring in at the rate of $1,000,000 a day from insurance alone, the banks of this city are more crowded with deposits than ever in their history. Comparatively little is being drawn.

Soldiers Relieve Police.

Peking.—In consequence of the wholesale murder of policemen here, of whom another was killed Friday, all the regular police have been felled and their places filled by dragoons and riflemen.

The possibility of famine is increased by the difficulty of getting supplies into the city. All the railroads have been destroyed. Only by way of the sea will it be possible to get food into the city for days.

The confused and panic-stricken state of the civil authorities makes anything like an organized effort to cope with the emergency impossible.

Ghouls at Work.

As much as possible has been done to prevent looting, but it still is going on.

No attempt has been made to recover the bodies of those buried in the ruins or to identify the dead.

Among the dead is the wife of Admiral Montt, the president-elect for whose installation preparations were being made at the time of the earthquake. An order has been issued that the funeral funds collected throughout the country for this event shall be devoted to relief.

Vina del Mar, three miles from Valparaiso, and having a population of over 10,000; Quilque, 25 miles to the southward, with a population of 2,500; Limache, 15 miles to the northwest, with a population of 5,000; Quilota, 25 miles to the northwest, with a population of 10,000, and villages all around were destroyed.

Rivals Fleece Horror.

The captain of a steamship which has arrived from San Francisco says that the situation here is worse than that following the disaster at San Francisco.

Proportionately the catastrophe here is considered greater than that which befall San Francisco. Valparaiso and neighboring towns are wrecked and partially burned, and in all of the towns of the Aconcagua valley conditions are similar. In the southern portion of Chile severe shocks were felt at Talcahuano, Concepcion, Talca and Zone, but there the disaster was not appalling. As yet no authentic news has been received from Santiago, although a courier is shortly expected.

Poor Suffer Most.

Shocks occurred from time to time Sunday, but are steadily diminishing in force. As to the dead and wounded, an accurate estimate is as yet impossible. Most of the fatalities by earthquake here were in the poorer quarters of the city where small houses collapsed. Many persons, including one or more high officials who were suffering from heart disease, died of shock.

Country in Ruins.

New York.—One of the worst earthquake disasters in the history of South America, has occurred in Chile, with the city of Valparaiso as the focus point of the calamity, according to cables from Valparaiso, Buenos Ayres and other South American points.

Advices are to the effect that a large part of Valparaiso has been blotted out, with an appalling loss of life and the destruction of millions of dollars' worth of property, while frightful damage has also been caused to other towns and villages.

As was the case in San Francisco, famine threatens the tens of thousands of survivors of the earthquake and an appeal for worldwide relief contributions is expected as soon as communication is restored.

The press correspondent at Buenos Ayres cables that it is feared the town of Los Andes, in the province of Aconcagua, has been destroyed. At the same time he points out that Buenos Ayres has no direct communication with the disturbed district.

Cable Operator Reports.

According to statements made by the cable operator at Valparaiso, who was working in direct communication with the office in Galveston, Friday's earthquake shocks continued at intervals throughout the day and many times the operators had to flee from their office.

The operator at Valparaiso stated that everything is in confusion at that place, that many houses have been razed and the loss of life believed to be great, although no attempt has yet been made to ascertain the number. Overland lines over the Andes mountains are all down and communication south of Valparaiso is completely shut off.

Sets New Auto Record.

New York.—L. I. Whitman and E. S. Carris, who arrived at the Astor house here Friday at 11:55 o'clock in a 24-hour power machine, thereby established a new cross continent automobile record.

Attempt to Kill Policeman.

Tula, Russia.—An attempt to assassinate Police Lieut. Soloviov was made in the public gardens here. The would-be murderer who escaped, fired four shots, wounding Soloviov and killing a waiter.

Accident to Cannon Ball.

Forney, Tex.—The Cannon Ball passenger train on the Texas & Pacific, due here at 9:24 a. m., was derailed on a 15-foot grade about one and a half miles west, resulting in serious injury to seven persons, two severely.

Gasoline Tank Explodes.

Peking.—By the explosion of a gasoline tank used in connection with a lantern show here a general of the army, and another official were killed and several persons were wounded. The occurrence caused great alarm.

State Capital Notes

Weekly Budget Gathered by Our Special Correspondent at Madison.

Madison.—John M. True, secretary of the state board of agriculture, reports crop conditions as excellent in all parts of the state, and says that last year's bumper grain crop, will, from present indications, be exceeded by this year's yield. The general prevalence of good conditions is the salient feature of the year's grain crop. Uniformity of good conditions was absent last year, although the average of the reports was satisfactory. The corn is especially promising, and the general use of improved methods in corn cultivation is having the desired effect. Dry weather is needed for the next few weeks to get the grain into the stack. The southern part of the state suffered somewhat from drought, which will interfere with the yield of small grain in that section. The grain is almost all harvested. Around Madison, this fact obliterated the bad results which were feared from the flood. The damage due to the rain was only slight, the grain in the shock suffering most. The apple crop is only a three-quarters crop this year. Insects are the cause of the falling off in the apple crop, although this might have been obviated, had the farmers sprayed the trees. The codling moth is the worst enemy of the apple crop and is chiefly responsible for its size. Orchardists who adopted the method of spraying the trees succeeded in saving part of the crop that would otherwise have been destroyed.

Madison's Great Celebration.

Active work for Madison's "Home-Coming" celebration July 5, 1907, has begun. With a full year's start the committee ought to get up a "hummer." The first work of the committee will be to compile a directory of all Madisonians afar. Everybody who knows of any persons who formerly lived in Madison, or of any person who for any reason will be interested in this "Home-Coming," is invited and urged to send or bring up such name to the committee. The committee wants the name and present address of every living soul who ought to come to Madison next July to this great "Home-Coming."

The committee says there are thousands of such names and they want them all listed. Then every such person will be informed directly by letter or circular and will be invited to be in Madison on July 5 next. Every citizen of Madison will be expected to "preach the gospel," "spread the good news," on every occasion to boost the "Home-Coming" celebration, so that it will be advertised over the entire country. This is the fiftieth year of Madison's municipal life and this "Home-Coming" is designed to celebrate this anniversary. There is not time to get up the "Home-Coming" this year as might be proper. It was deemed better to have it a year late and have it as great and as good as it should be, than to have a half hatched one this year.

Fee for Registration Papers.

From now until September 27 when the new law providing for a fee of four dollars for second naturalization papers goes into effect, the circuit judge and clerk of the court will be kept busy taking the oaths of persons desiring to become full fledged citizens of the country. Under the old law, a fee of 50 cents only was required for the taking out of naturalization papers. The new federal statute changes matters and the rush to get in within the time limit has begun. In Milwaukee it is said that over 100 persons took out their second papers. The circuit judge, county judge, municipal judge, or the clerk of the court can administer the oath. Two witnesses are necessary. The fee for taking out first papers remains the same, one dollar.

Nine Admitted to Bar.

Four Milwaukee men passed the recent state bar examination out of 19 applicants, only nine of which were successful. Those admitted to practice are: Arthur Horton Ames, Kenosha; Otto A. Rossmore, Sheboygan; Louis Cohen, Milwaukee; Eugene Huss, La Crosse; William R. Kirk, Menominee; V. S. Kutchnin, Hartford; Benjamin Saltzman, Milwaukee; Morris Stern, Milwaukee, and Edwin G. Wurster, Milwaukee.

No National Ticket Needed.

The attorney general rendered an opinion holding that it is not necessary to include a national Republican ticket on the official ballot at the September primaries because no candidates of that party denomination have filed nomination papers. The opinion was rendered in response to an inquiry from the secretary of state.

Name Nelson for Congress.

The Second Wisconsin district Republican convention nominated John M. Nelson, of Madison, as candidate for the unexpired term of the late H. C. Adams. Mr. Nelson's opponent was M. S. Dodgeon, of Madison. Nelson and Dodgeon are candidates for the long term nomination at the primary.

The convention adopted resolutions praising the services of the late Congressman Adams in connection with the meat inspection, pure food and agricultural college appropriation bills.

Board Wants Offers of Site.

The state board of normal school regents wants the real estate dealers and land owners of Milwaukee to offer it a desirable site for a normal school when it meets in Milwaukee on August 30. The proposed site at Twenty-fifth and State streets, which has been under consideration for some time, can not, it is said, be secured by the board because a proper title can not be had. The board is prepared to invest about $25,000 in the new building and site.

THE HISTORY OF POLICEMAN FLYNN

HE ARRESTS A DEFAULTER.

Policeman Barney Flynn was on reserve duty when the captain sent for him. The policeman sighed, knocked the ashes from his pipe into a cuspidor, put the pipe away and laboriously rose from his chair.

"Some fellow's been making trouble for himself," he said, "and I'm sure it's a shame that he should be so lacking in shame as to appeal a policeman's arrest before committing a crime."

He found a well-dressed, prosperous-looking man crouched with the captain, and the latter lost no time in explaining the nature of the business in hand.

"Flynn," he said, "this is Mr. Baxter, whose confidential clerk defaulted a few weeks ago, and has been in hiding ever since the shortage was discovered. You remember the case, of course. Well, Mr. Baxter has just received reliable information that the man secretly returned to his home last night, and is there now. Here's a warrant for his arrest, and I don't want you to come back without him. Mr. Baxter will go with you to identify him."

Policeman Flynn took the warrant and turned to Mr. Baxter.

"A despicable crime," commented the latter, bitterly. "He had been with me for years, and I always had been his friend. I trusted him implicitly."

"I'm sure," said Policeman Flynn, but without any enthusiasm. Then, as he picked up a pair of handcuffs, he added: "This best to take the bracelets along, for they may be handy."

A carriage was waiting, and as Flynn and Mr. Baxter rolled along the latter voiced his indignation.

"You can't trust anybody these days," he asserted. "The young men are utterly unreliable. They all want to live beyond their means, and in order to do it they naturally have to use another man's money. It's the age of high living and consequent defalcations."

"Mebbe 'tis so," assented Policeman Flynn, "but there do be laads I've thought was honest."

"Honest when there's nothing they can steal," grumbled Mr. Baxter. "Why, I taught this young fellow all that he knows about business—I gave him his training—and you'd think that gratitude alone would make him faithful to me."

"Sure ye w'd," admitted Policeman Flynn. "Tis a fine thing, is gratitude, when ye don't have to feed a family on it."

Mr. Baxter's indignation did not permit him to note the sentiment underlying this remark.

"I have advanced him steadily," he went on, "and with increased responsibilities I have given him more money until at the time he stole from me he was receiving $500 a year, and I intended to make it $550 next year."

"Eight hundred dollars a year," repeated Policeman Flynn, reflectively, "an' if course ye trusted him with money."

"Certainly. He's had as much as $15,000 or $20,000 in cash in his keeping frequently, and practically all the money that came in or was paid out passed through his hands. Why, he began with me as an office boy, and I had absolute confidence in him. I liked him, too. I gave him $25 for a wedding present when he was married three years ago."

"An' ye give him $500 a year," said Policeman Flynn again, as he thought.

At first Mr. Baxter was inclined to protest, but he thought better of it. There was still some distance to go, and the story might prove amusing, while his thoughts were not.

"Ye see," said Policeman Flynn, "there was a hungry lad came to the door in a house an' asked for a bite to eat."

"Are ye a honest man?" says the woman in the house.

"I am," says the man.

"This," says the woman, "I'll give ye a bowl of porridge—a fine large bowl—an' a spoon, an' when ye've tak three spoonfuls out 'th' bowl bring th' rest in it back to me, for I'm thinkin' I'll have use fr it."

"Twas a hard job, but th' man brought th' rest in it back, an' th' first day he come to her 'want more. She give him th' great bowl an' th' spoon agin an' tof him th' same as befor an' he was still house an' thried fr to put th' bracelets on him with Mrs. Flynn lookin' on. I got no more than was comin' to me fr the work I was doin'."

When his prisoner was safely locked up Flynn retired to the squad-room, and for a long time remained buried in thought, after which he treated some of his brother officers to this thoughtful commentary:

"An' edicated man, with a business thralin', an' a wife, an' a baaby, an' docther's bills, an' many years fr faithful work, an' slathers fr money passin' through his hands, an' him gettin' $500 a year. Accordin' to the law 'tis th' right thing I've done, but, layin' th' law to one side, th' idea do be runnin' in me head that I put th' bracelets on the wrong man."

LITTLE SHY ON HISTORY.

School-Teacher Who Had to Be Told Who Lincoln and Boone Were.

"You sometimes cannot always tell," remarked H. M. McCartney, of the western Pacific engineering department, according to the San Francisco Herald. "The people from whom you are prepared to expect the most are frequently deficient and disappointing. I met a lady from Kentucky some time ago. She was a school teacher. We chatted on various topics, and, among other things, she asked me:

"Whom do you consider the greatest man Kentucky ever produced?"

"There can't be any dispute about that," I replied. "Abraham Lincoln."

"Aren't you mistaken?" she said. "Lincoln, you know, came from Illinois."

"Well," I said, in an excess of gallantry, "if that is your understanding we will let it go at that."

"What state do you come from, Mr. McCartney?" she asked.

"Pennsylvania," I replied.

"And whom do you consider the greatest man that ever came from Pennsylvania?" she continued.

"Daniel Boone," I told her.

"Daniel Boone? And who was he?"

"Well, I informed her, among other things he discovered and settled up the state of Kentucky."

"And she was a school teacher. And from Kentucky."

Municipal Thrift.

On the way from one town on Cape Cod to another a contributor to the Boston Transcript came upon a charming house by the roadside, which immediately claimed his attention. It bore a fresh coat of white paint, which was well set out by green blinds.

There was a smooth piece of lawn in front, a group of fine shade trees and hammocks, piazza chairs, brilliant sofa pillows, and all the adjuncts of summer comfort in luxurious profusion.

"Whose place is this?" he demanded of the boy of 12 who accompanied him as guide and adviser general.

"That there?" said the boy. "Oh, that's the poorhouse."

"The poorhouse?" the man exclaimed. "You seem to have luxurious quarters in this town."

"Well, you see," was the explanation, "we ain't got but one, 'n' she's an old woman, 'n' the caversers they board her out with one of the neighbors 'n' let the poorhouse to some of them Boston folks for the summer, 'n' that pays her keep."

Meeting on the Life Road.

"Where do you hail from, friend?"

"From Poverty lane."

"And where may that be—so please you?"

"It is even where the poor folks give thanks for the mercies they receive."

"And what may those mercies be?"

"They are manifold. There the storms of Heaven have blown the doors down that the balliffs of the world may not know the number of the hovels, that they may levy on the rags of the wretched; there, darkness covers them all like a black garment, that the face of famine may not haunt the red dreams of the rich; and there the stars of heaven mock them not with glittering of gold, for the firmament is shut from them. They only know the sign of the seasons—the biting blasts of winter and the lights of winter, and the lightning lashed heat of summer. But they rest in deep security, for, where they are, thieves break not in and steal!"—Atlanta Constitution.

No Sympathy.

My uncle, George Brigham, a native of Buckfield, Me., a lifelong hotel keeper, his last hotel being the Walker house, on Commercial street, Portland, which he sold to the Boston & Maine railroad, was quick-witted and a great joker, as was also his wife.

He was a heavy sleeper. One night his wife was taken sick. She nudged her husband and said:

"George, wake up; I am awful sick."

He only grunted and turned over. After a while she nudged him again, and said: "George, you must wake up, for I am very sick."

"You sick, Mat? What's the matter?"

"George, I can't breathe."

He roused up for a moment and said: "Well, Mat, I wouldn't try."

Falliers' Anecdote.

Among the numerous stories being told of the new French president is one relating to a banquet at which he presided. A piece of money dropped from his pocket, and a neighbor said he thought it was a two-franc piece.

"Let it be," M. Fallieres replied; "it will be a good find for the waiter, and he will be sure to find it."

He whispered to that individual to look out for the money. Later on M. Fallieres was seen by his neighbor to let a two-franc piece slide down gently on to the floor. He explained to his friend that he had found that he kept only coppers in the pocket from which the piece supposed to be two-francs had dropped, and so, in order not to disappoint the waiter, had dropped on the floor what was really a two-franc piece. He thought he had not been observed.—London Telegraph.

News of Wisconsin

Interesting Happenings in the Various Cities and Towns of the State.

New Wisconsin College.

Sherry.—A new college is to have its beginning in central Wisconsin next month when the Northwest College institute is to be opened here by Rev. William J. Agnew, who since leaving the McCormick seminary in 1901, has devoted his time to mission field work in Wisconsin. Rev. Mr. Smith will be principal of the new college. Prof. Smith is a graduate of Princeton university, and seminary and is well known in the state. The college is opened with the idea of giving education to young men and women of limited means. Those of the students who will be forced to work for their education will be employed on the farm and in the dormitory in various capacities. The college will offer a regular academic course with much time devoted to the study of the Bible.

Goos to Prison for Graft.

Milwaukee.—John Brozek, sidewalk inspector of the Eighteenth ward, charged with obtaining city orders by false pretenses, pleaded guilty of the charge in the Municipal court and was committed to the Green Bay reformatory for an indeterminate sentence of from one to three years. Under the statute he could have been sentenced for from one to seven years.

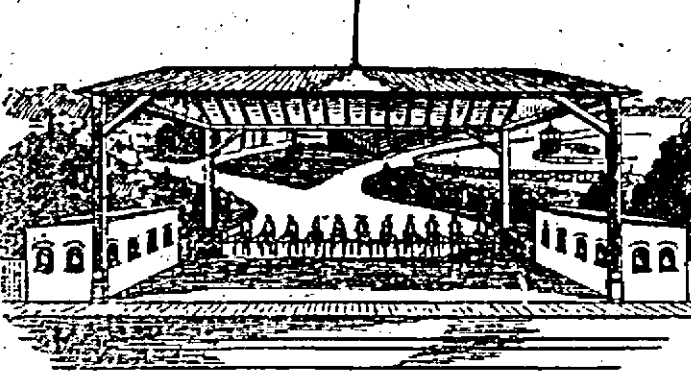

State Fair Grounds Improved.

There will be no congestion at the state fair grounds this year on Milwaukee day, even if one-third of the city's population presents itself for admission. Facilities for the entrance and exit of 100,000 people on any one day of the fair have been perfected.

Growth of Order of Eagles.

Milwaukee.—Grand Worthy President Hy D. Davis, of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, gave out his annual report for publication. President Davis notes an increase in membership during the last year of 25,000, making a total membership of 250,000 at the end of the order's eighth year. He recommends the formation of state series that it may not be necessary for the grand series officers to keep so minutely in touch with the smaller series. Mr. Davis reviewed his year's work of traveling, during which he visited almost every state in the union, and concludes: "We have grown so fast that it is marvelous indeed that our

by the joint committee of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' association, and the state board of agriculture, and the modern entrance which is now being installed will wipe out one of the needed improvements that the business interest of the city have been clamoring for for years.

Can Not Pay Damages.

Racine.—Miss Jessie McPherson, the fair plaintiff in the breach of promise suit against Walter Wood, the young manufacturer, will never receive a dollar for her lacerated heart. A jury gave Miss McPherson $5,000 damages, but this was considered excessive and Judge Belden cut it down to $1,700 and it was believed that Wood would pay the sum. Great surprise prevailed when the young man filed a petition in bankruptcy, showing that he practically had no assets. Young Wood was before Charles H. Lee, referee in bankruptcy, and developments indicate that Wood had nothing and consequently Miss McPherson receives no money.

Discover Miser's Hoard.

Black River Falls.—County officials have found $15,000 in gold while razing a portion of the old poorhouse here. The money was found between the walls and was doubtless placed there by some one who was a county charge. Some evidence has been found to the effect that the money belonged to "Dad" Gallagher, a well-known miser in his day, who is now dead, but who once lived at the county's expense.

Rain Storm Does Damage.

Janesville.—A terrific rain storm washed out a section of Washington street to the depth of 20 feet for a distance of two blocks. The curbing and gutters gave away, the cement walks were undermined and caved in, and the residences of William Dorsett and neighbors were in danger of toppling in. Tobacco crops in the vicinity of Brodhead and Milton were badly cut by hail.

Spiritualist Meeting Ended.

Wauwatosa.—The Western Wisconsin Spiritualists' society closed its fifth and most successful annual camp meeting here. The meeting will be held in Wauwatosa again next year. The following officers were chosen: President, Will J. Erwood, Black River Falls; first vice president, C. C. Pratt, Baraboo; second vice president, Mrs. H. M. Root, Neillsville; treasurer, A. Foster, Baraboo; secretary, Gertrude Spooner, Wauwatosa; trustees, E. Hemdaway, Carter; C. Spooner, and Mrs. Eva Potter, Wauwatosa.

Child Badly Stung by Bee.

Chippewa Falls.—Dece almost killed the four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Larson in the lawn of Arthur. The child is suffering intensely, and it is not known whether she will live.

Poisoned by Snake's Bite.

Beloit.—Lloyd Turner, a boy living in the western part of the city, while playing upon the Gaston school grounds was bitten by a snake on the calf of the leg. The leg began to swell immediately and physicians are taking heroic methods to stay the poison.

Pursuit of Hat Cost Life.

Stebogyan.—Otto Melner, aged 20, jumped from a moving street car after his hat, which had blown off, and was killed by the fall.

The march took on the old soldiers. The day could not have been better. The march was ordered straight from the storehouse of Providence. It was perfect. The shower of the evening before had laid the dust and cooled the air. During most of the parade it was cloudy, so that the veterans were saved the scorching effects of a summer sun. Many fear that this will be the last G. A. R. parade. From all sides the sentiment was that the strain is too much for the veterans and that if only one succumbs to the exertion it is enough to condemn the continuation of this feature of the encampment.

It was a warm sight, as the veterans marched in the line of the parade, and on a hundred other battlefields which made many of the old veterans sick and dazed to the line of march yesterday, even refusing to be refreshed by a drink of water or assisted on the way by kindly arms. It was an uncommon sight to see the soldiers wave away assistance as they tottered to the end of the line of march, there to fall faint into the arms of the Red Cross attendants or to be hastened off in relief automobiles in order to be revived at the hospitals or Red Cross stations.

The sweet, lingering notes of a battered army bugle were heard on the lawn of the central high school as the redemptive strains of "march" drew the attention of hundreds of passersby to one of the interesting and inspiring scenes of the encampment, "The field quarters" of the Minnesota regiments of the G. A. R. Here in the study rooms of the central high school, Minnesota's veterans are spending their nights and spare time during encampment week living again the scenes of '61 and rejoicing that they have been spared to attend the fortieth encampment of the nation's defenders.

Counted throughout the large building, bustling with activity upon the floors, for the boys are still campaigners, are to be found what is left of the gallant regiments which almost a half century ago marched from the borders of the state to fight for the Union. Camped on the floors in true service fashion, each man possessing his so many square feet of floor space which he treasures all his camp outfit, Minnesota's first soldiers are enjoying themselves to the utmost and nowhere in the country is there a happier or more contented gathering of men. They have met old comrades once again, and are sharing over the joys and sorrows of the year.

None of the soldiers eat at the school for the simple reason that there is nothing there to eat, but for foraging through the immediate vicinity it is possible to collect three good meals daily. Much of each day is spent in looking over the old comrades and comparing notes, and to one passing through and about the grounds many interesting scraps of conversation are heard.

And then as the summer stars peep upon the fortieth encampment and the glow of the fires and lamps cut small circles in the darkness the grand old battle hymns of the nation are sung to the accompaniment of the roll of an old-fashioned drum and the silver notes of the army fife.

Perhaps at the forty-first encampment, when the Minnesota camp is established, there will be some vacancies in the ranks, but this is only the fortieth encampment and the boys are making the most of it.

While the long line of faded blue squads slowly filed past the reviewing stand yesterday, the fife of tens of thousands, two of the members of the Grand Army who had fought her battles faithfully answered the last roll call of the faded blue of the Army of the Potomac and with the fife of '61 floating o'er them. A score of other battle-scarred heroes in the ranks marched until they dropped and were taken care of by the ambulance corps. The long march and the heat proved too great an exertion for many.

Col. Thomas H. Martin, second vice commander of the department of the Potomac, was killed by a fall from his horse on Hennepin avenue between Third and Fourth streets.

Robert B. Brown, of Zanesville, Ohio, was elected commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic by acclamation.

When the nomination for the office had been made seconds for the nomination of Commander Brown came so fast that it appeared to be a landslide and Judge C. G. Burton, of Nevada, Mo., withdrew in his favor. A moment later Capt. F. H. Conroy, of Topeka, Kan., also withdrew, from the contest, and amidst the greatest excitement Adjutant-General Treadwell was instructed to cast the unanimous vote of the encampment for the Ohio candidate.

The Grand Army encampment, under the influence of the oratory of the commander-in-chief, passed a resolution calling for the federal government to grant the veterans of the war and their families to see their influence with the daughters of the Confederacy to prevent the erection of a monument to Captain Henry Witz of Andersonville prison notoriety.

On the question of the canteen, the encampment took opposite action. It laid the canteen resolution on the table without debate.

Saratoga, N. Y. is the 1907 encampment city.

St. Paul—Frank Essenhelm, coachman employed by James W. Lusk, 557 Dayton avenue, was seriously injured by being run down by a Selby avenue car.

St. Paul—Harry Brown, a resident of Minneapolis, fractured his skull yesterday by a fall from a scaffold at the new street railway shops in the Mill-wade district.

Minneapolis.—The railroads prepare for heavy freight traffic when crops begin to move.

St. Paul—Charles F. Thurston, a deputy collector of customs, is killed by emigrants in Santo Domingo.

St. Paul.—The state board of control yesterday awarded the contracts for furnishing supplies for the state institutions for the next quarter. St. Paul jobbers get a good share of the contracts and St. Paul packers also will supply most of the pork and beef products.

Minneapolis.—Capt. James C. Riley, a white-haired veteran from Sioux City, Iowa, who is attending the G. A. R. encampment, found his long-lost son in the police court waiting trial on a charge of drunkenness. The father had not heard from his son for many years, but he had heard that he was working in St. Paul as a musician.

St. Paul.—Mrs. J. Kirsh, 6 East Eleventh street, was hit by falling from a street car at Eighth and Cedar streets.

Mankato.—The state purchases necessary land for Minnesota Park, near here.

Minneapolis.—Thirteen voting machines, one for each ward, will be used in the city for the primary and general elections.

Rochester.—A number of Southern Minnesota capitalists are considering the leasing of the Wisconsin-Rochester branch of the Chicago Great Western and turning it into a trolley line. This bit of track, it is said, is being used less frequently every year, and it is believed that little difficulty would be found in inducing the railroad officials to lease it.

St. Paul.—Fifty degeneration of the heart caused the death of Mrs. Johanna Overbeck, aged fifty-one years and for twenty-nine years a resident of St. Paul. Mrs. Overbeck who had been ill for some time died suddenly while sitting in a chair at the home of her daughter, 21 West Third street.

TO REPUBLICANS:

We are anxious to have every Republican in close touch, and working in harmony with the Republican National Congressional Committee in favor of the election of a Republican Congress.

The Congressional campaign must be based on the administrative and legislative record of the party, and, that being so, Theodore Roosevelt's personality must be a central figure and his achievements a central thought in the campaign.

We desire to maintain the work of this campaign with popular subscriptions of One Dollar each from Republicans. To each subscriber we will send the Republican National Campaign Text Book and all documents issued by the Committee.

Help us achieve a great victory. JAMES S. SHERRMAN, Chairman. P. O. Box 2063, New York.

PLATFORM OF JAMES H. MADDEN.

To the voters of 10th Congressional District of Wisconsin:

The Republicanism of Theodore Roosevelt is my ideal of the highest type of citizenship to which any Republican can subscribe. The principles he has outlined and the policies he has instituted I most cheerfully endorse. Should I be nominated and elected as Congressman from this great district I would esteem it a privilege to add our President with my voice and vote at every opportunity in carrying on the contest he has instituted in behalf of the people. On railroad rate legislation, on providing the proper means and methods to curb the growing power and influence of the great trusts and monopolies that oppress our citizens on the rigid inspection of the food products that are consumed by the American people, on the protection of policy holders of insurance companies, on the revision of the tariff as time and conditions demand, on the encouragement of every legitimate enterprise, and on the other great national questions that affect the health, happiness and prosperity of our people I stand with President Theodore Roosevelt, and live and untrammelled from any influence, power or special interest I will, if nominated and elected, as an American citizen, use my best efforts to make the American government more thoroughly representative of the people along these lines and to promote the best interests of this congressional district.

JAMES H. MADDEN.

Mr. GEORGE DUREL,

Rhinelander, Wis. Dear Sir: You'd strike it rich if you could find a way to shave your customers in less time, for less cost, and make the shave last twice or three times as long.

You wouldn't have the same person so many times, or get so much of his money, but the whole town would be talking about you, and everybody would come to you for a shave. Durel lead-and-zinc is exactly that in paint. It takes fewer gallons and it wears longer. Costs less for the job, and you don't have to do it again for years and years—six years at least. "Fewer gallons; wears longer." Takes fewer gallons to paint a house with Durel lead-and-zinc than with mixed paints; and it wears longer than mixed paints or lead and oil.

Yours truly F. W. DUREL & Co.

THE 1906 DESIGNS IN

At G. P. ALEXANDER'S

He has this year the finest line in Northern Wisconsin. The only prize winning designs at the St. Louis fair in the city. He will be pleased to have you call and see this line display whether you want to buy or not.

AN APPETIZER.

Not a fiery liquor which destroys rather than creates an appetite, but a palatable beer, which contains only sufficient alcohol to stimulate the stomach to perform its normal functions and aids to digest the food. Rhinelander beer does all this, does it well, does it daily. If you give it a chance. To be had at $1.00 per dozen at Rhinelander. Orders called for, goods delivered at your door.
